WOC Nursing – A Special Calling

The role of a nurse specializing in the care of patients with wound, ostomy or continence (WOC) disorders is multifaceted, challenging and rewarding: coordinating patient care in complex environments, using skills in science and technology, customer service, critical thinking, advocacy, decision-making, managing, communicating and creative problem solving.

WOC nurses have successfully met the rigorous criteria and passed the examination to become certified in the area(s) of wound, ostomy and/or continence nursing. This respected certification is held only by an elite group of specialty nurses.

WOC nurses work with other disciplines and provide supervision of additional health care providers, make recommendations for patient care that are evidence-based, cost-effective and individualized for specific patient situations, with a dual focus on complication prevention and disease state management.

Bringing it all together is no easy task. The WOC nurse's knowledge, leadership and commitment to caring make it happen. And for support, continuing education and professional resources, WOC nurses turn to the WOCN Society.

The WOCN Society

Founded in 1968, the Wound, Ostomy and Continence Nurses (WOCN) Society is the only national organization for nurses who specialize in the prevention of pressure ulcers and the management and rehabilitation of persons with wounds, ostomies and continence disorders. With more than 4,000 members, the society's mission is to support its members by promoting educational, clinical and research opportunities to advance the practice and guide the delivery of expert health care to individuals with wounds, ostomies and continence disorders.

Accepted as the "gold standard" for the management of patients with WOC conditions as well as the premier provider of education and best practice/optimal patient outcomes, the WOCN Society promotes collaborative, state-of-the-art clinical research to improve patient outcomes and drive policy decisions.

Member Testimonial "WOCN is invaluable in providing me with a network of colleagues, as well as timely CE programs and important legislative updates. I don't see how anyone in this line of work could function at a professional level without being a member."

Debra Dubuc, RN, MSN, APRN-BC, CWCN, COCN

High Demand – High Satisfaction

As the population ages and hospital stays shorten, there is increasing demand for the time-efficient, cost-effective treatment the educated WOC nurse provides. WOC nurses have their choice of many areas of practice, including:

- ♦ Stoma care
- ♦ Pressure ulcer prevention
- ♦ Wound care/management
- ♦ Urinary incontinence
- ♦ Fecal incontinence

The WOC nurse brings expertise to a variety of settings—acute care, home care, long-term care, outpatient clinics, community health centers and independent practices. The choices—and opportunities—are nearly limitless.
